Students celebrate diversity
Campus highlights World Awareness Week

Museum unveils Frank Lloyd Wright house

Atlantic-Pacific canal underway in Nicaragua

Museum unveils Frank Lloyd Wright house

One of the environmental effects on freshwater ecosystems was a 'human-made basin' which could be seen in the house's layout. The house was designed with a series of elements that would allow for the preservation of the environment. The museum has trained for the sustainable use of the house, and the community is excited to explore it. The house is open to the public, and visitors can take a guided tour or explore it on their own. The house is a significant example of Wright's commitment to American architecture, and it has become a real testament to the importance of preserving the environment. The museum is continuing to work on preserving the house and its周边 elements, and it is excited to share its story with the public.
Panel talks church, marriage equality

TARAH THOMAS
Lifestyles Editor
thomasay@jbu.edu

Many students gather last Wednesday for a question and answer session where John Brown University’s president Chip Pollard and chaplain Reed Redish discussed the Supreme Court’s ruling on gay marriage and how it relates to the church. Resilience Life facilitated the conversations on how the Supreme Court decision affects students and the University environment from the student body.

Critical topic of discussion I’m glad we’re able to talk about it. Anybody who is a student can’t avoid that being a social science major, said Lifl. I think what is important to know that the University is not taking a stance that will be adverse those situations that might arise.

In the past three years, Dr. Pollard has addressed to followers at our statements of faith saying, “It’s still what we believe and real.”

Weighing in on the issue, said that this is our position. Gay and lesbian people, private Christian institution, both a religious and a state. The judicial position that sexual desires are given a man and a woman and receptor within the context of marriage.

The Supreme Court’s decision on gay marriage can have long-term effects on institutions and students through the dissolution of federal funding or the institutional denial of accreditation. The decision can also affect the perceptions of a religious institution’s graduate school or even jobs.

President Chip Pollard (center) and Reed Redish (left), university chaplain, answered student’s questions and asked questions, facilitated discussion and organized text-in questions from the audience.

JESSIE BRANDON/TheThreefoldAdvocate

Students prepare Christmas gifts for children

MEGAN CHAPIN
Staff Writer
chapinmj@jbu.edu

The campus broadcast news organization is staging its annual with a new broadcast in Spanish called EagleBreak Español.

This is the first broadcast for EagleBreak Español. The group is also the first Spanish broadcast according to the University administration. It is to be tuned in to Spanish Bible and theology courses, it would be surprising for the broadcast to be shut down, said .

The University is partnering with Operation Christmas Child, said . The University has started a campaign to pack a box.

The collection week occurs between Nov. 16 and 23 This is when students can drop boxes off at various locations on campus.

Students can get together and work on the project, said .

Anchors Matt Bowen and Rachel Musiime for EagleBreak Español, as well as around the world, it is important that students come together to pack a box.

Mitchum wrote that “As we pack these boxes, I think in mind that the greatest gift we can give to children around the world is the love of Christ. It is not just about us, but about what we are doing for others.”

EagleBreak broadcasted in Spanish

EagleBreak Español is not just for Spanish-speaking people, but also for the international community as a whole. Said that when EagleBreak Español is interviewing people for EagleBreak Español, they should interview people in a variety of languages.

 Flags illustrated by the author of the article.

2 NEWS

November 5, 2015
The Threefold Advocate
Man of la Mancha adapts Spanish novel

MARIA VELAZQUEZ
Staff Writer
velazquezm@jbu.edu

John Brown University students promise a spectacular performance this weekend with The Man of la Mancha. The musical is based on the Spanish novel "El Ingenioso Hidalgo Don Quijote de la Mancha," better known as Don Quixote by Miguel de Cervantes. Senior music education major, Steven Hamilton, will perform as the main character of the musical, Miguel de Cervantes. In an interview via email, he expressed his excitement about playing the role of Cervantes. "The real Cervantes lived an incredible life. He saw a great deal of hardship in war as a soldier, in prison as a captive and in his own country as a struggling playwright. However, he had an indomitable spirit that allowed him to bear up against struggles and maintain his honor and his positivity despite harsh conditions," Hamilton said. Senior photography major, Abi Caskey, said in an email interview that this musical will be a unique experience. "This musical is very different than any we've done recently. The musical is dark but at the same time there are definite moments of beauty and humor," Caskey said. Caskey also said that this is the first time she is participating with a small cast. "There are only 12 of us, which is the smallest cast I have ever had the privilege of being in, but it is服务 with talent," she said. "It's extremely demanding since we have several layers to our characters, as well as playing several different characters." The musical will present a diversity of themes related to human nature. "This musical explores a number of themes relating to the basic nature of humanity. Humans live in a state of depravity, and are often prone to despair. However, the show does not leave the audience in the dark. Hope, not despair, is the show's final thought," Hamilton said. Something that makes The Man of la Mancha interesting is that it is a play-within-a-play. "The audience has to follow two story lines, the prison and the story of the knight, Don Quixote," Caskey said. While the musical is a University production, it is not suitable for audiences under 12 years old.

Alec Warn recites his monologue at dress rehearsal. La Mancha is based on a novel by Miguel de Cervantes.
Siloam Springs, Ark. 72761
Phone | 479-524-1781

CONTACT US

The Threefold Advocate believes that all the artists in the community should be allowed the freedom of expression, as it is their outlet and form of the company.

The country needs to have a fair election. We The Threefold understand that the election is important to the rebels’ power. Without power, there will be little significance to the rebellion. Therefore, Syria should only focus on getting rid of the terrorism and the rebels. If the rebels hold the freedom from power, this is both unrealistic and unfair.

The Threefold Advocate would like to clarify that editorials, those pieces in the political agenda."
SARAH WHITE
OPINIONS EDITOR
I have always been unclear on my position on the death penalty. But when I attended a conference in Austin, Texas, where more than 2,000 students, journalists and advisors were in attendance, I was presented with some compelling arguments for and against the death penalty.

I used to think that in order to make an effective mission trip, it was necessary to travel a long distance to a place in extreme and precarious conditions. If there is not a 10 hour long drive or long flight to a foreign country or town, there is not a real and impactful mission trip. The idea of going to Colcord, Okla. on a mission trip might not sound as attractive as Africa, Europe or South America. You might ask yourself the question, “Why spend a fall break in a place that is so close to JBU campus?” But I challenge you to start asking instead, “why not?”

“Children always find a way to smile and have a good time even in the middle of harshships. These kids know how to have fun.”

I want to share my experience on one of the final mission trips to Colcord. First, being there gave me back that special feeling you get from people who, no matter their situation, always keep hope alive. I believe it is because I have a personal connection to Colcord. It is located, I am one of the poorest counties in Oklahoma. This is ironic, considering that it neighbors one of the richest counties in the state of Arkansas. Even though people in Colcord might not have the same lifestyle like the average American citizen, those four days in Colcord helped me to realize that they are one of the poorest counties in the world, and that we are all in this together. They learned how to serve the kid’s excitement and desire to see their families, their town and themselves progress. They also learned the importance of their community and how they can become anything they want to be and travel as far as their imagination lets them.

In the end, this is what we are called to do. Take the good news to those far away and to those who are close as a 20 minute drive. The Colcord mission trip is not only about what you will give to these people through the hard work and time you spend in the community, but also about all the lessons that you will learn.

This trip challenged the way I approached missions and reminded the sense of hope and waiting in God that brought me to JBU.

Sarunas is a sophomore majoring in communication. He can be reached at Sarunas@jbu.edu.
“This is our last race of the season, so we’re all prepared to give whatever we have. Left is being held back.”

—Abigail Danley

Students need to step up to support sports

REBEKAH HEDGES
MANAGING EDITOR

Nightfall Lights, Ethan’s fitting mix about high school better than any other team. To some, lights are just a television show for them, to others it indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has just indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has with high school football.

I miss the community that football games brought to our school and town. It’s difficult for me to not see our athletes and the capability to bring people together. “As a crew,” he said. “We’ve been able to move forward faster together as a team.”

Regardless, the teams are not only competitors in their own methods, but also to themselves, and I think we’ve all really prepared to give everything we have.”

Ultimate frisbee dresses up for Fayetteville

Sports Editor

Max Bryan
Sports Editor

bryanm@jbu.edu

Sports Editor

Rebekah Hedges
Managing Editor

Friday Night Lights, Ethan’s fitting mix about high school better than any other team. To some, lights are just a television show for them, to others it indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has just indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has with high school football.

I miss the community that football games brought to our school and town. It’s difficult for me to not see our athletes and the capability to bring people together. “As a crew,” he said. “We’ve been able to move forward faster together as a team.”

Regardless, the teams are not only competitors in their own methods, but also to themselves, and I think we’ve all really prepared to give everything we have.”

Ultimate frisbee dresses up for Fayetteville

Sports Editor

Max Bryan
Sports Editor

bryanm@jbu.edu

Sports Editor

Rebekah Hedges
Managing Editor

Friday Night Lights, Ethan’s fitting mix about high school better than any other team. To some, lights are just a television show for them, to others it indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has just indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has with high school football.

I miss the community that football games brought to our school and town. It’s difficult for me to not see our athletes and the capability to bring people together. “As a crew,” he said. “We’ve been able to move forward faster together as a team.”

Regardless, the teams are not only competitors in their own methods, but also to themselves, and I think we’ve all really prepared to give everything we have.”

Ultimate frisbee dresses up for Fayetteville

Sports Editor

Max Bryan
Sports Editor

bryanm@jbu.edu

Sports Editor

Rebekah Hedges
Managing Editor

Friday Night Lights, Ethan’s fitting mix about high school better than any other team. To some, lights are just a television show for them, to others it indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has just indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has with high school football.

I miss the community that football games brought to our school and town. It’s difficult for me to not see our athletes and the capability to bring people together. “As a crew,” he said. “We’ve been able to move forward faster together as a team.”

Regardless, the teams are not only competitors in their own methods, but also to themselves, and I think we’ve all really prepared to give everything we have.”

Ultimate frisbee dresses up for Fayetteville

Sports Editor

Max Bryan
Sports Editor

bryanm@jbu.edu

Sports Editor

Rebekah Hedges
Managing Editor

Friday Night Lights, Ethan’s fitting mix about high school better than any other team. To some, lights are just a television show for them, to others it indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has just indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has with high school football.

I miss the community that football games brought to our school and town. It’s difficult for me to not see our athletes and the capability to bring people together. “As a crew,” he said. “We’ve been able to move forward faster together as a team.”

Regardless, the teams are not only competitors in their own methods, but also to themselves, and I think we’ve all really prepared to give everything we have.”

Ultimate frisbee dresses up for Fayetteville

Sports Editor

Max Bryan
Sports Editor

bryanm@jbu.edu

Sports Editor

Rebekah Hedges
Managing Editor

Friday Night Lights, Ethan’s fitting mix about high school better than any other team. To some, lights are just a television show for them, to others it indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has just indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has with high school football.

I miss the community that football games brought to our school and town. It’s difficult for me to not see our athletes and the capability to bring people together. “As a crew,” he said. “We’ve been able to move forward faster together as a team.”

Regardless, the teams are not only competitors in their own methods, but also to themselves, and I think we’ve all really prepared to give everything we have.”

Ultimate frisbee dresses up for Fayetteville

Sports Editor

Max Bryan
Sports Editor

bryanm@jbu.edu

Sports Editor

Rebekah Hedges
Managing Editor

Friday Night Lights, Ethan’s fitting mix about high school better than any other team. To some, lights are just a television show for them, to others it indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has just indicates the ridiculous obsession the South has with high school football.

I miss the community that football games brought to our school and town. It’s difficult for me to not see our athletes and the capability to bring people together. “As a crew,” he said. “We’ve been able to move forward faster together as a team.”

Regardless, the teams are not only competitors in their own methods, but also to themselves, and I think we’ve all really prepared to give everything we have.”

Ultimate frisbee dresses up for Fayetteville

Sports Editor

Max Bryan
Sports Editor

bryanm@jbu.edu

Sports Editor

Rebekah Hedges
Managing Editor
Cheer team executes with precision

November 5, 2015
The Threefold Advocate

DARIA ZELLMER
Online Editor
zellmerd@jbu.edu

EMILI WIDNER/TheThreefoldAdvocate

Cheer team executes with precision

DARIA ZELLMER
Online Editor
zellmerd@jbu.edu

Cheerleaders conquer blood, sweat and tears as well as jeopardize their safety to master their routines at practice. The John Brown University community has the opportunity throughout the rest of the semester to see them perform.

“The cheer team loves to see everyone excited at the games,” co-captain Audrey Macey said. “We love it when there’s a big crowd and they participate with us.”

The members of the cheer squad said stunting is particularly challenging. Senior Lindsay Dodson a base on the Cheer team, attested to stunting being “the most intense part of cheerleading.”

“In stunting, the flyer is one thrown into the air and caught by the bases and back spot. The base consists of two people who lift the flyer, and the back spot holds the ankles and controls the stunt. Sophomore Conner Bedor, a flyer on the team, the feat. “Stunting is probably my favorite thing I do as part of the JBU cheer team, but it’s incredibly hard to do,” she said. As many stunt and dismount varieties as there are, they all rely on the principle of trust. Dodson said it is similar to “doing an epic trust fall.” ”

“It’s like four girls becoming one person,” she said. “The minute you set to load into a stunt, there’s an unspoken agreement. It’s like an energy between everyone, and we all know that we’re in this together.”

The union in stunting is extremely particular. Leaning a single inch too far to one side, throwing too hard or not catching high enough are potential factors for a fall or injury to the flyer or to the back spot and bases catching below.

Choreography is another component that Dodson explained demands specific body positions as detailed as thumb placement. All cheers and routines rely heavily on impeccable harmony, so much so that Dodson described everyone as being so in sync that they are even breathing together.

This team of female athletes holds two hour-long practices twice a week. This does not include tumbling classes and their individual training. They work hard to perfect their stunts, their tumbling and their dances. Bedor explained their efforts are due to their passion for the sport as well as their desire to make routines that appeal to the audience. Participation in the stands as well as the lack of participation translate to the student athletes and trend within the student community as a whole. Bedor explained the frustration of cheering when few students are in the crowd. She compared it to the fun of cheering for their fellow athletes with a united spirit of their peers.

“If JBU athletics was more united, then it would be easier for the campus to engage and be more excited about sporting events,” said Bedor. “We are all student athletes who are playing our sport and are trying to represent our school in a positive way.”

Corrections: in issue 7 of The Threefold Advocate, which ran October 29, Clayton Lyon was not credited for the photo in the article “Rugby captain leads on and off the pitch.” We apologize.
Test your knowledge of geography, languages and general culture.

Capital Cities Crossword Puzzle

Across
1. Capital city of India
3. Capital city of Czech Republic
7. Capital city of Brazil
9. Capital city of England
10. Capital city of Malaysia
12. Capital city of Costa Rica
14. Capital city of Greece
15. Capital city of Singapore

Down
2. Capital city of Poland
4. Capital city of Djibouti
5. Capital city of Australia
6. Capital city of El Salvador
7. Capital city of Argentina
8. Capital city of Peru
11. Capital city of Cambodia
13. Capital city of Canada

Country Outlines

Identify The Flags

Identify The Language

Photos courtesy of Google Images
Designed by Gustavo Zavala, Visual Art Director